Meet the candidates, week 2: “How will your life experience help in your work as supervisor?”

I’ve owned several businesses, and served in the military as a Military Police Officer. My travels led me to living and working in villages in Tanzania. My experiences have taught me a lot about empathy, service, and personal responsibility. This will help me as a supervisor to think outside of the box — Both when it comes to finding solutions for the problems the Richmond District is facing, as well as when a pragmatic frame of mind is needed. D1 deserves a supervisor who won’t make policy based upon wishful thinking, but who instead will focus on the problems and come up with solutions and compromises that work.
