

District 5 is the best district.

We're an incredibly diverse district, a microcosm of the City -- but even more important, we're the heart of the City, where movements begin.

The Harlem of the West. The Summer of Love. The school board recall I led from my apartment in Lower Haight to turn our schools around. The fight to save our Safeway. The AI revolution. All here in District 5.

In our darkest times, District 5 is where we've found hope.

Hope in the faces of the Safe Passage volunteers guiding kids to school in the Tenderloin. Hope as new restaurants open in Lower Haight and a new Trader Joe's opens in Hayes Valley. Hope in the voices of the Fillmore's people fighting for their Safeway with Japantown's support.

It's been a rough few years, but we can and will turn things around for San Francisco. I love this district, I love its brilliant compassionate people, and I know there is a better future ahead -- because we will build it together.
